The approach proposed by Porter foresees the reorganization of care assistance around the clinical conditions or population segment, monitoring of outcomes and costs and changing the remuneration model in order to stop remunerating by volume and started to remunerate for the outcomes obtained in the treatment.

CONCLUSION

By integrating the RWE framework into the VBHC organizational framework, healthcare organizations can leverage real-world data to inform decision-making, enhance measurement and evaluation, foster continuous improvement and inovation, and ultimately deliver higher value care to patients.

The combination of these frameworks enables a more patientcentered, evidence-based, and sustainable healthcare system.
